Editor's Corner

This issue features the Ojai Festival, which has been held every two years since 1946. The Ojai Festival is sponsored by the 5 Cities Folk Dance Council, a group of folk dance clubs from Santa Barbara and Ventura counties. You can read about this year's Ojai Festival and the history of the 5 Cities Folk Dance Council starting on page 4.

Last month's Laguna Folkdance Festival had great dancing and teaching, and was a tremendous success. You will find a review and photographs on page 18.

You will also see many flyers in this issue for coming folk dance activities. Over the next few months there are events in Ojai, Las Vegas, Culver City and Mailbu (Camp Hess Kramer). If you missed the Laguna Festival, there are still plenty of great opportunities.

Federation Corner

We are the Bingles – Rick and Lynn. We handle the responsibilities of both of the Secretaries of the Federation. We have been dancing with the Pasadena Folk Dance Co-op for about twelve years. You may have met us at two of the Statewide Festivals, where we were Registrars and cooked the barbecue for the Festival at Whittier.

There are two Secretaries of the Federation – Recording and Corresponding. There are multiple responsibilities for both jobs and we slice and dice them different ways in different months. It would be very difficult to say which of us holds which office, but we do manage to get the job done-most of the time.

The Recording Secretary keeps a record of the Federation meetings. The job entails noting the details of bills, officers' reports, Council actions and the other business of the Federation.

The Corresponding Secretary handles all Federation correspondence, including mailing the minutes, and giving notice of all meetings. If you think that you should be getting minutes or other Federation info, let us know. The other duties of the Corresponding Secretary are to keep the Federation seal and to maintain a record of attendance. We would like to see more clubs represented and voting at the meetings.

We are all interested in promoting folk dancing and the more ideas we have, the more successful we will be. Rick and Lynn Bingle, 120 E. Juanita Ave., Glendora, CA 91740, (626) 914-4006, bingle@earthlink.net

Ojai Festival

This month's cover story is about the biennial Ojai festival, a mainstay event since 1946, and the 5 Cities Folk Dance Council, a unique union of groups in Santa Barbara & Ventura counties.

— Steve Davis

April 15th is known whimsically as the Ides of April, or more ominously as Income Tax Day. Five Cities Folk Dance Council has chosen this memorable date to celebrate Ojai Festival 2000. The one-day festival will feature five hours of teaching by two popular International dance teachers – Barry Glass and Sherry Cochran – in addition to a free Kolo Hour hosted and programmed by Billy Burke and an evening dance party. The entire event will take place in the intimate confines of the Ojai Art Center, a traditional venue of the Ojai Festival for over 20 years.

The Ojai Festival has one of the longest traditions in Southern California folk dance. This event occurs every two years, and the year 2000 will be the 28th festival.

Festivals in Ojai began in 1946, when the reputation of Ojai's folk dance group and the beauty of the area led Ojai to be chosen as the site for the first California Statewide Folk Dance Festival. The next year, when Statewide was held in northern California, the desire of local folk dancers was so strong that Ojai began a continuing tradition of holding its own Festival every other year.

Over the years there have been changes. During the 1970's and 80's a typical Festival began with a Friday evening pre-party and lasted until Sunday afternoon. In addition to workshops with master teachers, activities included a barbecue, a kolo party, evening and afterparties, and memorable concerts with such performing groups as Aman, Nevenka, Westwind, Polsky Iskry, Balaton, Kopacka, Koroyar, and Billy's Kids (Yes, they were really the 32th St. Magnet School Dancers, but these wonderfully talented dancers were always Billy's Kids).

Daytime teaching workshops were held in Nordhoff High School Gym, which offered generous room for dancing, good visibility for teaching, spaces for vendors and good acoustics. Afterparties, Kolo Hours, and sometimes the entire Festival were held at the Ojai Art Center, which has a good wooden dance floor and is decorated with the work of local Ojai area artists. The parties often overflowed onto the large adjacent patio, which was also used for barbecues and as a second site for vendors. Afterparties usually featured live music provided, in true folk tradition, by impromptu gatherings of musicians from the performing groups. More recent Ojai Festivals have packed the best of these features, including master teacher workshops, the Kolo Hour, and parties into a single day, held entirely at the Art Center. The tradition of excellent teachers has continued, with recent Festivals featuring Istvan Szabo ("Kovacs") and Barry Glass, Jaap Leegwater, and Israel Yakovee.

The 1998 Ojai Festival was a magical happening which expanded to three days. Yves Moreau traveled from Montreal to teach all 12 of the dances on his classic Bulgarian "Red Album", which is one of the most popular folk dance albums ever released. The response was tremendous! In more than eight hours of strenuous teaching spread over two days, nearly 300 dancers learned or re-learned Pandalas, Kulsko, Denjovo, Opas, Cekurjankino, Baldazka, Abdala, Bicak, Kokice, Radomirsko, Deninka, and of course Dospatsko. As a result, many of these dances, which were past favorites, are being danced again.

We are looking forward to "The Ides of April" and the 2000 Festival. Both of our teachers, Barry Glass and Sherry Cochran, have wide international repertoires. Sherry was a featured dancer with Polsky Iskry, while Barry was the Artistic Director of Aman. They will teach a heavy dose of classic favorites, along with some unfamiliar but exciting new dances. See you in Ojai on Income Tax Day!

5 Cities Folk Dance Council

Five Cities Folk Dance Council is unusual among Southern California folk dance organizations. It is not a Club but a nonprofit umbrella organization made up of five clubs from Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties that act together to enjoy and promote folk dance.

Southern California Federation activities have always been centered in the Los Angeles area; the extra travel, the distance, makes participation by dancers from Ventura and Santa Barbara difficult. As a result, individual clubs in the area used to hold occasional open parties and host workshops by expert teachers. In the early 1980's a need was felt to expand these activities and to cooperate to share the work involved.

Representatives of the dance groups from Conejo Valley, Camarillo, Ventura, Ojai and Santa Barbara met at Alex and Joan Sheydey's house in fall of 1983 and formed Five Cities Folk Dance Council. This meeting was the first of many afternoon potluck gatherings on Alex and Joan's patio. The group agreed to hold parties every three months hosted alternately by the clubs, to coordinate teaching to foster a common core repertoire of dances among the groups, and to cooperate in holding teaching events.

The first party was held Nov. 11, 1983 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Ventura. There was an abundance of food brought by the 87 attendees. Dick and Jana Julian had their two children there, little Anne in a Czech costume. Alex Sheydayi was kept busy playing records for a program of about 70 dances, while Ann Zacher kept urging him to go faster.

Even this first event showed the pattern of Five Cities events to this day: The admission cost was low at only $2.00. (Some Five Cities events are actually free, and each of our Festivals includes a free kolo hour, traditionally hosted by Billy Burke.) Each Five Cities Group chose a limited number of their favorite dances for the program, which was balanced between current favorites, classic dances, and newly introduced dances, with frequent slots programmed for request dances.

It was clear from the start that most parties should be held in Ventura due to its central location. Initially, each party was hosted by one of the Five Cities member clubs. This one group would provide decorations, set out tables, do cleanup and bring food. Eventually the system evolved so that groups and individuals tended to specialize in particular tasks and do them for all parties: Conejo Valley and Santa Barbara representatives jointly make the program, provide a high-quality sound system, and run the music; Ojai and Havarim of Ventura provide decorations, and food comes on a potluck basis.

In addition to parties Five Cities has always hosted day-long workshops with master teachers, which over the years included Alexandru David, Israel Yakovee, Tom Bozigian, Barry Glass, Istvan Szabo (Kovacs), and others. Soon the Committee perceived an additional need the group could fill: providing really competent instruction in material accessible to beginning dancers, especially classic or core repertoire dances. This has led to an ongoing series of day-long workshops preceding Five Cities evening parties, featuring teachers such as Dick Oakes, Jim Kahan, and Sherry Cochran as well as Five Cities group leaders including Stephanie Johnson, Dick and Jana Julian, Jill Lundgren, Jeanette Curci, and Ann Zacher. Since 1988 Five Cities has conducted the Ojai Festival every two years. This event required additions to our regular division of labor: Registration has been handled by our Treasurer Edith Sewell, while publicity has been shared by Leo Smith (newspapers), Stephanie Johnson and Sheila Wilgus (flyers) and the group leaders (flyer distribution).

Over the years the member groups have changed, but 5 Cities continues to flourish with an unchanged mission to conduct folk dance activities characterized by maximum dancing, excellent instruction, reasonable prices, great fun and minimum frills.

5 Cities Committee members Ann Zacher, Dick Julian, Marsha McGill (standing), Stephanie Johnson, Edith Sewell (standing) and Carol Smith.

5 Cities Folk Dance Council

The current Five Cities groups provide dancing in four cities five days a week. They include Ojai, Conejo Valley, Ventura (Friday and Sunday), and Santa Barbara. Some history of the groups is given in the following sections.

Conejo Valley Folk Dancers:

Loretta and Ben Kornbluth, who were students at local folk dance classes given by Joe Martin, founded Conejo Valley Folk Dancers in 1979. Prior to this time no Folk Dance Federation clubs existed in the Conejo Valley. The club has flourished ever since and is now the largest Five Cities club.

In addition to dancing every Monday evening, folk dance parties were plentiful in the early years, hosted by club members such as Gene and Nann Lovejoy. Sue Diebolt's St. Patrick's Day party became an annual event. Later on the Lundgrens had parties, and as the membership increased the Lovejoys and Bottorffs hosted a party in the park each summer. For over a dozen years the club has held a New Years Eve party at the Arts Council Center in Thousand Oaks.

What turned out to be a critical event occurred in 1980 when local schoolteacher Nann Lovejoy dragged her husband Gene to one of Conejo Valley Folk Dancers' classes. Gene grumbled and complained the first evening, but he promised to give folk dancing a fair try. Luckily, Gene kept his promise to Nann - from the early 1980's until Gene's death in 1997, the Lovejoys sustained the group the Kornbluths had founded. The club flourished and grew steadily, from 20 members in 1980 to around 70 by the early '90's. It outgrew its initial meeting place and moved to the multipurpose room at Conejo Elementary School. This growth can be attributed largely to the leadership of the Lovejoys, and to their belief that, above all, folk dancing should be fun!

The members are enthusiastic learners, and Conejo Valley has been a leader in hosting visiting teachers, including Anastasia, Shhlomo Bachar, Tom Barr, Illianna Bozhanova, Dennis Boxell, Tom Bozigian, Sherry Cochran, Alexandru David, Mihai David, Michael Ginsburg, Joe Graziosi, Nicholaas Hilferink, Zelijko Jergen, Jaap Leegwater, Yves Moreau, Dick Oakes, Bora Ozkok, Ventsi Sotirov, George Tomov, and Theodor Vasilescu. Many have appeared more than once. Members also increase their repertoire by attending workshops and the annual Camps Review at Hess Kramer.

When Gene Lovejoy became ill in 1996, group members stepped up to continue running the group. Ginnie Bottorff took responsibility for bringing the audio equipment and opening the facility each week, and organized various tasks to be shared. After Gene's death, Ron Lundgren took on responsibility for running the music programs. Ginnie is still behind the scenes running business, and the general membership pitches in wherever needed.

Over two decades hundreds of dancers have participated at our Monday evening dances. People have come and gone; the faces have changed. Only one of the original members, Blossom Fiel, is still an active member, but the Conejo Valley Folk Dancers continues to thrive and to be fun.

Ojai Folk Dancers

If an old folk dancer were to return to Ojai after a 50-year absence, and he just needed to do a little Tino Mori, he could find the Ojai Folk Dance group right where he left it, still at the Ojai Art Center, still playing records, still dancing the classics. A night with the Ojai Folk Dancers combines a long trip down memory lane with a short look the best of current folk dances.

The Ojai Art Center, with its homey, beckoning feel, has a unique place in the history of folk dance in California. The Center opened in the late '30s, and by the '50s the folk dancers were its main attraction and its primary source of income. By the '60s adults and children were turning out to dance several nights a week, often numbering in the hundreds. Enthusiasm was so high a late night dance party was held monthly as a form of celebration - folk dance in Ojai was a perfect fit for the '60s ideology! For over 40 years the Ojai group put on the biennial Ojai Festival, which is now conducted by Five Cities.

Over the years those involved in running the group included Mary Nightingale, Don Coons, Becka Deja, Mary Bangs, Sara Harkins, Ann Zacher, Marsha McGill, Kris Dotson, Leo Smith, and now Aaron Clapp. A peek into the old wooden dance record cabinet is like peering into the past. It's a treasure chest of history and memories. There is a complete set of mint condition 78-rpm records from the early days of folk dancing. There's a collection of 33 LPs and an exhaustive grouping of 45s, which have recently been transferred to cassettes and are moving toward CDs.

5 Cities Folk Dance Council

There's a collection of dance programs and posters from yesteryear, which hint at the large gatherings when hundreds trekked out to Ojai for celebrations. There are stacks and stacks of old dance notes, miscellaneous newspaper clippings, and parts of donated record collections.

Although no longer in its heyday, the rich tradition of folk dance in Ojai lives on!

Editor's Note - Anyone attending the Ojai 2000 Festival should take a minute to look at the record cabinet, definitely a nostalgic trip into folk dance history.

Nichevo Santa Barbara

Although folk dancing in Santa Barbara goes back continuously for many decades, Nichevo folk dancers began in 1970 when a group of UCSB students asked Flora Codman to form a new folk dance club. Flora has led Nichevo ever since. Soon nonstudents joined and an active dance program began. In the late '70s the group moved from UCSB to the Carrillo Recreation Center downtown, with its famous sprung floor.

Santa Barbara conducted its own folk dance festival for many years, and has hosted several Statewide dance festivals and many well-known teachers. For example, Atanas Kolorovsky made his first United States appearance here.

Nichevo meets Tuesdays from 11-12:30 at Carrillo Recreation Center, and on Thursday evenings from 7:00-9:30 at the Unitarian Society, Santa Barbara and Arellaga St. For information call Flora, (805) 967-9991.

Havarim Folk Dancers of Ventura

Havarim was started by Barbara Rosenberg and Ann Zacher in 1981, and had a tradition of dancing outside, mostly at the Ventura Beach Promenade, using records from Tchaika, the Thursday night Ventura group. When increasing commercialization made the Promenade unavailable, the group moved to Barranca Vista Park and then in 1987 to Temple Beth Torah, where they continue to dance every Sunday evening.

Ventura Folk Dancers

Ventura Folk Dancers, formerly known as Tchaika and before that as Opa, have been dancing since 1970. The group has hosted many teachers, and prior to the formation of Five Cities held monthly folk dance parties attended by dancers from many local groups. The group, taught by Edith Sewell, has a Romanian-Balkan emphasis and meets Fridays at Loma Vista School.

LAS VEGAS FESTIVAL

On the 18th & 19th of March Y2K, the Ethnic Express International Folkdancers hosts "Arriving Las Vegas and the City of Las Vegas" a Folk Dance Federation of California South Inc. sponsored event. It will be held in the Charleston Heights Art Center at 800 South Brush Street, Las Vegas, Nevada. This is a beautiful facility with a big ballroom and a theater for the Sunday concert. The Council meeting will be held there, too. Our Vice-President this year, (or fireman in railroad jargon) is Roni Wolf. She and husband Bill are currently on a two week excursion to Thailand. Before arriving in Las Vegas and meeting and marrying Bill, she was a folk dancer in Texas.

DUNAJ NEWS

Dunaj will spend much of March preparing for April and May when we'll have two full-length fandango productions, plus a four-hour Imagination Celebration dance performance at Fullerton's Muckenthaler Center and an appearance at the Camarata Singer's Concert in Long Beach. We're reviving our very popular Appalachian Clog Suite and getting an early start on our Oktoberfest dances, not to mention our favorites from Transylvania. We'll be teaching many of them from the beginning for some of our newer dancers - a good time for interested dancers to join us. Like every other dance company, we are in desperate need of men. Anyone interested? Call us at (714) 641-7450.

STATEWIDE 2000

"Millennium Merriment" will be held at CSU Fresno from May 26-29, on the wood floor of the South Gym. Registration and dance Friday night, including Bora Gajicki playing live music and teaching. Saturday features morning and afternoon workshops, and an Irish Ceilidh with Kevin Hall, including an exhibition. At night an Armenian band will play in one room, while taped music is in another. An Ice Cream Social and after party round out the evening.

Sunday after a warm-up dance there is an Institute with Bora Gajicki, and exhibitions. In the evening a kolo hour will be followed by two events: Live music for Bulgarian and Macedonian dancing, in parallel with international tapes. The weekend finishes with a picnic and dance on Monday.

Special rates are available at the Ramada Hotel, and arrangements have been made for RV's. Plus there are a number of sights to see in the area when you need a break from dancing.

VESELO SELO FOLKDANCERS

John Matthews continues to teach the Friday night Intermediate / Advanced class, reviewing dances from the Laguna Festival and recent workshops.

Saturday Schedule:

March 4 - Beginners & Old Favorites

March 11 & 18 - Laguna Festival reviews

March 25 - Special Event with Miamon Miller and Band. We'll dance from 8:00 to 12:00 midnight, with an afterparty to follow. Please feel free to bring some finger goodies to share. Come and dance with the "folk dancers' maestro" on this special night.

A Special Thanks to everyone who joined us for Ray Augustine's 70th Birthday Party on January 28. Over 100 folk dancers, many from the Pasadena area, danced to the great music of the UCLA Balkan Band led by Tim Rice. What a treat to hear those young voices so closely match Bulgarian tradition. We are delighted to have them. Ray and Charlotte's son, Bill, an avid and skilled folk dancer since childhood, came from Las Vegas. Aubrey David and her mom, Carolyn Tomey, were there, along with grandparents Faith and Windsor Rees. Also present was former Veselo Selo owner, Marge Gajicki and daughter, Anna. Remember how they used to be little kids?

FIRST ANNUAL IDAHO FOLK DANCE FESTIVAL TOUR

Each summer there is a superb event, the Idaho International Folk Dance Festival in Rexburg, Idaho. This internationally acclaimed festival (now in it's 15th year) features some of the finest teams of dancers from around the world performing their country's native dances.

Folk Dance Scene

This summer, 2000, we have created the First Annual Idaho International Folk Dance Festival Tour. The tour is designed for the recreational folk dancer and includes workshops, evening parties, picnics and culture sessions. You will be able to interact with the visiting performers, as well as several hundred folk dancers from all across the U.S.A. All this in addition to the many regularly scheduled events during the festival. Also included in the tour will be visits to Yellowstone National Park, with the famous "Old Faithful", geyser, Jackson Hole, Wyoming seated amidst Grand Teton National Park and more. There will be lot's of entertainment and tons to do. We've planned a "culturally oriented, fun-filled" 12 day tour (July 27-August 7, 2000) that is sure to fill you with priceless memories for years to come!

Group departures will be from California, Florida and New York.

OJAI FESTIVAL 2000

Come celebrate the new millennium on April 15th, known whimsically as the Ides of April, or more ominously as Income Tax Day. Five Cities Folk Dance Council has chosen this memorable date to celebrate Ojai Festival 2000. The one-day festival will feature the popular International dance teachers Barry Glass and Sherry Cochran, in addition to a free Kolo Hour hosted and programmed by Billy Burke and an evening dance party. See flyer in this issue for detail. For additional information call Stephanie (805) 659-2444 or Dick (805) 964-7957.

JAAP LEEGWATER AND 'KUSMET'

Next summer I will be back at Stockton Folk Dance Camp, bringing along musicians from Holland: folk group: "Kusmet". All of the Bulgarian dance classes will be accompanied with live music and "Kusmet" will also be the new Stockton "houseband" this year for the evening parties.

We are available for workshops and evening parties from June 22 – July 22, 2000 at the West Coast and stopover locations on our way from The Netherlands to California.

About Folk group Kusmet: The Kusmet musicians have a large range of experience in Bulgarian folk music. They play on many of my recordings and in addition of being excellent musicians, they really know how to play for dancers.

Dance House approach: In addition to regular workshops we have had many positive responses to our so called "Dance House" approach: At larger parties with dancers at various levels I have developed a sort of "Dance House" approach with the musicians in which I take on more the role of Dance master or Line leader. Not much teaching but more leading of long line dances to generic Bulgarian tunes and rhythms. The emphasis is on experiencing the dance and learning the steps by doing.

If you are interested in future workshops and events with us, you may contact me as follows:

Jaap Leegwater, Majellapark 11, 3532 CS Utrecht, The Netherlands. Phone: 011-31-6-25024416, jleegwater@isa.nl.

CTMS SUMMER SOLSTICE

The California Traditional Music Society is presenting the 18th annual Summer Solstice Folk Music, Dance and Storytelling Festival on June 23-25 at Soka University in Calabasas. This is the largest participatory folk event in the country, and this year will have even more dancing than in the past.

Yves Moreau (Bulgarian) and Athan Karras (Greek) head the list of folk dance teachers., and there will also be Scottish, Irish, Andean, Quebecois, Israeli and Contra dancing.

In addition, CTMS offers over 300 classes in a wide variety of folk instruments and singing. And lots of performances, jam sessions, storytelling, food and crafts. Children are welcome and a number of sessions are specially oriented towards them. For more information call (818) 817-7756, ctms@lafn.org.

Laguna Folkdance Festival Review

The Laguna Festival was an unqualified success. Live music, excellent teachers, and diverse vendors all contributed to a great weekend. Congratulations to Steve Himel and his committee for a great job.

— Steve Davis

Once again, the Laguna Folkdance Festival has drawn enthusiastic folk dancers from near and far, converging on Ensign Intermediate School in Newport Beach, eager to learn from excellent teachers and to party long into the night. This year Michael Ginsburg and Belle Birchfield brought us dances from the Balkans, and Ya'akov Eden taught dances from Israel. The emphasis was on dances from the past, and the variety of dances provided a challenge for both beginning and experienced dancers.

Michael Ginsburg & Belle Birchfield Ya'akov Eden
Friday night started out with a workshop by Ya'akov Eden (Belle and Michael's flight from New York was cancelled, and they arrived later than planned, but managed to stay up late for the afterparty!). Wonderful music was provided by the very professional UCLA

UCLA Balkan band and singers on Friday night.

Balkan Band including three gaida players and a drummer. There was also a remarkable performance by a young women's group, singing in the Balkan style with precision and wonderful stage presence. The young women also joined in the dancing, adding their youthful zeal.

On Saturday, Michael and Belle not only taught with their usual magnificent style, but gave us a special experience by playing their instruments in the center of the circle while we danced. Ya'akov brought us classic Israeli dances. We were able to finally learn how to do the "camel"! His expertise guaranteed the success of the dancers and his humor kept us happy all weekend.

Atlantic Crossing brought us live music for a portion Saturday evening, carrying on their long standing tradition. Their singers impressed us with their beautiful voices.

Atlantic Crossing plays on Saturday night

After parties were enhanced, as always, by the delicious food, compliments of the Laguna Folkdancers. These parties gave many dancers the opportunity to do those dances that they love the most, as the parties were "all request".

Sunday's concert was filled with talent. It began with the unique and amazing sounds of Zhena Folk Chorus.

Zhena Folk Chorus performs at the Sunday concert

Laguna Folkdance Festival Review

Dunai performed a new set of Fandango dances, richly costumed and enthusiastic. Scandia, beautifully researched and performed, showed us the varied sides of Finland, from the rather serious to the humorously playful. Bandari returned with their joyous, flamboyant and sensuous dances of Persia. For me, the highlight of the afternoon was Tanza, otherwise known as Billy's Kids, a group from Los Angeles area high schools, under the direction of

Billy Burke. A hush fell over the full house when these teenagers took the floor. Watching them dance three suites, one African, one Hawaiian and one North African, I felt certain that the future of folk dance was assured. They were a pure joy to watch – young, energetic and talented. Thank you Billy for your tremendous contribution to local folk dancing!

The beautiful Laguna Folkdancers banners provide a wonderful setting for dancers of all ages.

Tanza performing Hawaiian and African dances

Finally, Grup Dansaire Catalonia ended the program with traditional dances, including a whimsical dance done in wooden shoes. As an introduction to the Sunday afternoon dance, with music by Madison Ave. Folk, the Catalonian group invited everyone in the audience to join them for their national dance, a dance of unity and friendship, Sardana.

Billy Burke (left) summed up the weekend for me in his statement: "The joy of celebrating a culture through its music and dance is to be found in the head, heart and soul of the performers. To do so in one's own culture is a duty; to do so in the culture of others is an honor."

FEDERATION DIRECTION

In the recent By-Law election, 5 standing committees were dropped: Beginner's, L.I.F.E Camp, Workshops, Teacher Training, and So. Calif. FD Camp. They were unfilled, and at least dormant if not defunct.

We have lost camps, festivals, teachers and workshops – activities that I thought were the life-blood of folk dancing. These are activities that Federation should be emphasizing, and it is worrisome to me to see them go.

DANCE TIPS

The basics of movement are the same, no matter the purpose. As one studies different movement disciplines - dance, athletics, martial arts, acting, mime, gymnastics, anything - the truth becomes more and more obvious.

That truth is that: movement must come from the "center". Old country martial arts masters, modern dance teachers, gymnastic coaches, athletes and dancers, farmers and laborers all discovered that truth, whether by design or by accident, because that truth enabled them to achieve their maximum performance, whatever that performance may be.

The Japanese martial art of aikido may have achieved the ultimate development of the skill. Who has not seen demonstrations of skilled aikido practitioners tossing multiple opponents about as if by magic?

Every time we witness a 300-pound power lifter or a seven-foot-plus high jumper or an 80-pound mite of a gymnast perform their art-sport, we witness "moving from the center". When Baryshnikov performed his 14-revolution spin in White Nights, we saw "moving from the center". When Greg Luganis performed his almost unbelievable aerial feats from three stories high into the diving pool, we saw "moving from the center."

When we see a folk dancer trying to punch a hole in the floor with every stamp of a Romanian "allunelul", we do not witness "moving from the center." When a lady dressed in an elegant antebellum ball gown is unmercifully jerked into turns with square corners on them, neither she nor her partner are "moving from the center."

As many, if not most, Victorian dances require some sort of turning movement, the skill of "moving from the center" is a very good thing to develop. Gentlemen must realize that, in most turning dances which progress along the floor, partners take turns moving ahead of each other. That's true in the waltz, the polka, two-step, schottische - all of them. Each time one moves ahead of the other, a turn is created. That turn must be centered on the partner being passed.

The gentlemen are usually heavier and stronger than their partners, thus it falls to them to create the energy source for the starts, turns, spins, stops and reverses of which the dance is composed. It behooves the gentlemen, therefore, to master the many techniques of accomplishing this necessary skill, lest he be considered something less than an ideal dance partner.

Gentlemen, consider that your center is the center of the turn when she passes you, and so is hers when you pass her. The outer edge of the turn is, for practical purposes, the lady's back where your right arm is positioned to lead and support her in the turns.

So. In a clockwise turn, as in a waltz or polka, as the man moves the lady ahead of him, he pivots around his own center, providing a turning point, or anchor, for her turn, as he sweeps her ahead of him. Then, he uses her body weight as the center for his own turn as he passes her.

Always, both dancers keep their body weight centered, not allowing a lean into the turn or away from the partner. The "pelvic tilt", addressed last month, is of utmost importance: lift the pelvis in front and tuck under in back to relax the lower back, drop the center of gravity and place your feet forward under your partner.

Couples can practice by standing in closed dance position, the man's feet apart and woman's together; the man flexes both knees and straightens them as he swings the lady to one side and rotates his upper body to support her. Then swing her back to the other side, dipping and rising. Her back should describe an arc around the man's center.

Stay centered, stay calm and share the dance. It is the stuff of which life is made.

WARSZAWA POLISH RESTAURANT

Often when I go to a restaurant, I have a tough time deciding among the many delicious-sounding items. Jill and I usually order different things, so each can have half of the other's. But sometimes that doesn't work out, or sometimes two choices aren't enough. The Warszawa (Warsaw) has a great solution for this: Each person can order half of two different items! So you get to try at least two things, and if you are fortunate with your dinner-mate, perhaps four. And there are lots of good items to select from.

The night we were there, there was a piano player playing, what else, Chopin. The restaurant is divided into a number of smaller rooms, so there is a feeling of intimacy. Very enjoyable evening. Located at 1414 Lincoln Blvd. (at Santa Monica Blvd.) in Santa Monica. (310) 393-8831.

ODESSA RESTAURANT

This is a restaurant run by a family from, where else, Odessa. Much of the menu items are, of course, Ukrainian, but being near the Mediterranean, there is also some influence from Greece, Armenia, etc. Extensive menu with reasonable prices. The family is very friendly, and anxious to please. They gave us tastes, split dishes, and overfilled our plates. The restaurant is very good with large groups, and will accommodate your choices, or provide you with a great selection of lots of dishes.

Saturday night there is live music, with a combination of popular and Russian music (We did Korobushka and a watered-down Hopak). No wine, but there is a wine shop next door, and there is no corkage fee.

They are in Tarzana, just West of Reseda Blvd. At 18525 Burbank Blvd. (818) 705-6630.

VIDEO REVIEW

"Dances of the Ragtime Era 1910-1920"

This is Volume 2 of the "How to Dance Through Time" series produced by Carol Teten's Dancetime Publications of Kentfield, California. Volume 1, which we have not seen, deals with the couple dances of the mid-19th century Romantic Period.

Intended as an instructional video, "Ragtime" generally accomplishes its purpose with a series of nice demonstrations of the various dances, obviously prepared by an experienced teacher. A series of figures are demonstrated by a couple in full-figure and close-up shots, with repeats, ending in a shot of the couple in appropriate costume dancing the figures in a complete sequence - a very nice way to show how the dance can be constructed.

Teten begins with the Animal Dances of the early Ragtime Era, including the Horse Trot, Duck Waddle, Turkey Trot, Snake, Kangaroo Hop and Grizzly Bear.

"The Castle Walk" gives a nice series of figures for the One-Step, accompanied by a brief review of the well-known story of Vernon and Irene Castle (shown at left).

The Castle Walk is followed by the tango. Teten again gives a credible discussion of the tango's history from Argentina up to the 1920s and illustrates the genre with a recreation of choreography by Rudolph Valentino - slightly disappointing in view of much better examples from the Castle's repertoire. Knowledgeable Ragtime dancers view Valentino's tango as something of a corruption.

"The Maxixe" (Teten pronounces it: mah-cheesh) receives a nice treatment, even to the use of a dance dress very similar to the one Ginger Rogers wore in the movie. Teten shows some very danceable figures not well-known to most Ragtime dancers.

"Hesitation Waltz" ends the series, upholding the standard set by the preceding examples. Teten makes one curious point of stating "man's left foot between his partner's legs" in a forward counter-clockwise waltz turn. We have never heard that before, and it does not appear that the dancers actually do that. We found it a very uncomfortable dance position to execute.

"Dances of the Ragtime Era" can indeed teach figures of the dance - if one already knows how to dance. It is not for the uninitiated, as there is no basic instruction about leading and following or basics of dance movement. The illustrations would have been clearer if the woman had not been wearing an ankle-length black skirt and the man wearing black slacks - against a black background. Many, myself included, would find Teten's counting method to be a bit irritating and a little too "cutsie" at times with breathless squeals illustrating movements and strange syllabic grunts substituting for rhythmic counts.

For its few faults, "Dances of the Ragtime Era" can be a valuable addition to your library if Ragtime Dance is of interest to you. Even after more than a decade of practicing Ragtime Dance, we found new material here and intend to share it with our students.

We also saw the tape, and feel that Rich's summary describes the video very well. The only additional comment we would have is that it seems very professionally done with music and costumes of the period, and some historical notes.

CD REVIEW

It's a bit late for Christmas music, but this is worth getting anyway just for the fun of it. It is a CD of Christmas music played by a Klezmer Band! Such music you never heard in your life! And if nothing else, get it just for the title, "Oy to the World". The CD is available from klezmonauts.com.
