Editor's Corner

This month's issue features the annual California Folk Dance Federation Statewide Festival which will be in San Jose from May 19 – 21. Teachers will be Cristian Florescu and Sonia Dion (Romanian) and Samy Makar (Salsa Rueda). We hope to see you there; it will be a great time. See article on page 4.

This issue also features two great articles by our contributing editor Jatila van der Veen - Davis. One article is a review of two recent dance events that we attended in the San Francisco area. One event was a CD release party sponsored by the group Voice of Roma (VOR), headed by Sani Rifati. The other event was the Mendocino Folklore Camp fund raiser and tribute to Dick Crum and Gordon Engler, who both passed away recently.

The second article is about the Bulgarian Nestiarstvo ritual of fire-walking. Jatila had a chance to talk with Daniela Ivanova last month, who has done field research in Bulgaria and talked with modern-day fire-walkers about their fascinating abilities.

Federation Corner

This is a summary of what happened at our most recent Council meeting, April 2, 2006:

We met representatives of our newest Federation Club: Ballet Folklorico Juvenil De Pico Rivera.

We received our new Membership Directories.

We adopted a budget for 2006-2007. In addition to covering the usual administrative expenses, it includes money for camp scholarships and money to help with the costs of renting space for festivals.

We elected a new slate of officers. These people will be installed at the Statewide Folk Dance Festival in San Jose in May.

President Marsha Fenner
Vice President Lynn Bingle
Secretary Charlotte Edgington & Jeanne Cate
Treasurer Rick Bingle
Membership Steve Himel
Publicity Sylvia Stachura
Historian Sandy Levy

We voted to hold Statewide 2007 at the Oxnard Performing Arts Center on Memorial Day weekend (May 25-28, 2007). Valerie Daley will be the Festival Chairman.

It has been my privilege to serve as your Federation president for the two years ending in May. I want to thank every officer and committee chairman for all of your work in keeping folk dancing alive and well in Southern California. Please be as supportive of your new president, Marsha Fenner.

I'll see you on the dance floor.

GRAB YOUR DANCING SHOES, AND COME ON UP TO SAN JOSE

I'm getting excited about Statewide and I hope you are too!

We have many treats in store for you. You probably already know about the teaching staff. We love Sonia and Cristian and we know that you do too. And, we are looking forward to all the new dances they have prepared especially for us. You've probably checked out Salsa Rueda, too - it's hot in the Southland and it's gonna heat up Statewide, especially with Samy teaching!

The teachers, however, are just the beginning. The college where the event will be held is in a beautiful suburb of San Jose and is a very short drive from the village of Saratoga, with lovely restaurants and boutiques, situated at the foot of the Santa Cruz Mountains. If you have a little extra time, then adding a mountain drive or a visit to Santa Cruz for a little nostalgia is a perfect beginning or end to the weekend.

I am jealous that you get to stay at one of the Larkspur Landing Hotels, and I have to sleep at home. They are one of the best-rated hotels in the San Jose area and they have given us a fabulous weekend rate of $79. You can't beat that, and the rooms have full kitchens, feather beds, breakfast and Starbucks coffee included. I'm ready to pack my bags and have a luxury weekend myself.

Do you like international music? I know that's a silly question. We have incredible music for your dancing pleasure. If you have not had the privilege of being at a party with Chubritza, then you are in for a real treat. They play with joy and enthusiasm and incredible showmanship. They make anywhere they play into a party. If you like line and circle dancing to live music, and you don't really like couple dancing, then when the couples come out, check out the Kafana where there will be more live music from Bay Area Bands. They will be playing the entire time, so you can check it out if you just want a little time to sit and enjoy a more intimate moment, or hear a different type of music. The Kafana bands will play a variety of tunes from many countries including Bulgaria, Macedonia, Albania, Serbia, and Greece. You might also hear Klezmer, Rom (gypsy), and even Scandinavian and old time American fiddle music. I'm dancing in my seat as I write this, wishing the party were right now.

Those of us on the committee like atmosphere and treats, too. How about a chocolate fountain at the banquet? How about live music during the appetizers? How about hearing the renowned, and always entertaining Jerry Duke, share with us his stories, songs, and folklore from Appalachia? This is a banquet I don't want to miss. Hopefully you are reading this before May 1st! and you still have time to pre-register, and attend.

One more thing....On the same campus, in a beautiful theater, we are also having a concert featuring dancers and singers with selections from some of the best performing groups in the Bay Area.

Come to San Jose, and experience the best in international dancing, music, and entertainment. DANCE YOUR WAY TO SAN JOSE! Remember May 19, 20th and 21st!

For more info, look on our website home.comcast.net/~statewide_2006/statewide_2006.html.

See you there.....

Fire-Walking in Bulgaria

"Few people know that Nestinarstvo is charisma - it chooses the person, not the other way about. One is born to be a nestinar... Some day, the 'door' leading to the 'castle' simply opens in him, and the way is waiting, straight ahead. Nestinarstvo belongs to those ritual systems whose roots were deeply implanted in the very origin of Man's concept of secular and sacred" (Ivailo Ayanski, 2001).

Ayanski describes the transcendence of the performer during the ritual:

"The embers are the intersection-point of the time and space axes. They remain somewhere between heavens and earth, change the nestinar's body, and present it to the community completely transfigured. In other words, the particular living matter does not react in the usual way to the temperature change, and the nestinar reaches the state of trance; the so called "fit" or "obsession". That "fit" leads him to an "information field", which is the source of his visions.

...Many of the local people still remember the famous prophecies made by some Nestinari - Granny Dobra, Granny Zlata Daskalova. They predicted the disaster that befell Bulgaria under the reign of Czar Boris III, the onset of the communist system, and many other things that are facts today. They are not susceptible to any type of interpretation, except reading. They are simply facts.

...While dancing, one has no sensation of reality; the only sensation is that of flying, of fluttering wings... It is worth mentioning that the state changes in the nestinar's body precede the act of dancing, his sight is blurred, and his sense of orientation is lost, together with his auditory perception. The only sounds the nestinar can hear, are the tune of the bagpipe and the beat of the drum. At that moment, his body is controlled by a power belonging and coming from another world. So, it is deprived of its conscious processes and reaches the level of subconscious contacts, in which mind does not participate."

I have seen a demonstration at a physics teachers' convention during the summer of 2005 in Sacramento, in which a physics teacher tried to "prove" how walking on embers can be done safely, in order to diminish the mystery of this ritual. The individual created a long bed of hot coals, and proceeded to, at the proper moment, run across it. He crossed back and forth a few times, running lightly, with flat feet held relaxed, like "snow shoes" so as not to dig into the embers. He did not appear to get burned, but there were fire extinguishers on hand - just in case. But what I have seen (in videos, not in person) of the Nestinari is that they dance on the coals, rub their feet in them, and get on their hands and knees, gather embers and throw them over their heads. Neither their bodies, nor their clothing, are affected by the heat, yet a piece of newspaper flung onto the coals would burst into flame. This phenomenon simply cannot be explained by our so-called "laws" of physics!

As Ivailo Ayanski of Strandzha says, it is not subject to any interpretation. It is just a fact. For me, trained both in dance and physics, I find the idea that human beings can transform their bodies so as to be able to walk on 1000-degree Fahrenheit coals and not get burned no less amazing than the current notions that the universe really exists in 11 dimensions, or that we can calculate not only the expansion rate of the universe, but the acceleration of the expansion at the present time. The mere existence of such people as Ivailo Ayanski in Bulgaria, who preserve and practice this ritual, simply deepens my love of the music and dance that has come from such a culture!

The Nestinarstvo Ritual

Bulgaria ©2004 Carnival.com

Communal dance has been an integral part of village life in many parts of the world for millennia. The sense of continuity with the past, and community in the present, is strengthened by the music, rhythms, traditional instruments, as well as the traditional steps, of the horo. Some rituals combine ancient pagan rites with Christianity. Examples include various fertility rituals for women, associated with the festivals of St. Lazarus and St. Enyo (St. John), and the mummers' (masked kukeri) rituals for men, associated with Lent. The most dramatic is the Nestinarstvo ritual, which culminates with fire walkers (nestiari), both male and female, who dance in a trance on hot coals in honor of the patron saints of their villages.

The Nestinarstvo ritual of Bulgaria, has its origins in the proto-Bulgarian civilization that predates even the Thracian and Greco-Roman cultures. Considered by practitioners to have a common origin with the Anestinar practice of Greece, it is practiced today in southeast Bulgaria (Strandzha District) and in certain villages in Greece. The public performance of trance dancing on hot coals is the most well known aspect of a more extensive practice, akin to the "medicine" practices of the Americas. With the adoption of Christianity as the official religion at the turn of the 9th century, many of the earlier pagan rituals became incorporated into the celebrations of the Christian holidays. The Nestiarstvo ritual in southeastern Bulgaria is most closely connected with the feast of St. Constantine and St. Elena, celebrated on May 21, but can also be performed in association with other patron saints' days (Ayanski, 2001).

The ritual is mostly performed at night. During the day a huge bonfire is built, so that by evening there is a large circle of glowing embers. Protected by their saints, the nestinari, who can be equally female or male, dance on the hot embers. The nestinari may dance alone, with a partner, or in a group. They usually begin their dance on the coals by tracing a cross, and then follow their own inspiration. They are accompanied by a special kettle drum reserved for the occasion, along with gaida, tapan, and cow bells. The nestinari emerge unharmed, ecstatic, and elated from their experience, even transformed, according to some accounts (Ivanova, 2003). The individual performances vary according to the feelings and personal styles of the performers.

More than a mere feat of super-human prowess, the dancing on hot coals as an ecstatic religious experience goes far beyond any that we can imagine our Judaeo-Christian-Muslim modern practices. According to Daniela Ivanova:

"fire-dancing imparts to us the idea of a really ancient meaning of rhythm-and-action, when it performed a central culture managing function. The rhythmic stomping around and on the glowing embers, the unrestrained spinning, gesturing, rhythmic chanting - loud, sharp, piercing, vahkania, the beating of a percussion instrument - all these take us to the time of rather ancient ecstatic ritualism. The bearers of this activity rationalize it as the establishment of intensive contact with the cosmic fundamentals, as a particularly strong direct bond between human beings and divinity, between the external and the internal, whose climax is the point of falling in a state of ecstasy, prihvashtane." (Ivanova, 2003).

According to Ivailo Ayanski, a modern Nestinarstvo practitioner, the ability to walk on fire is a gift or calling that is recognized at some point by the individual:

FROM OUR FAVORITE RECIPES (WESTWOOD'S CAMP HESS KRAMER)

A few years ago, members of Westwood Co-op Folk Dancers compiled some of their best recipes and put them together in their first annual cookbook.

There has been no second annual cookbook, since it turned into a great deal of work. However, we would like to share some of the recipes with our readers. If you like them, we'll print more. Below are the first two.

Sybil Goldenblank's Praline French Toast

This recipe was requested by Sybil's friends. It has long been a favorite. It is perfect for entertaining.

8 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
8 slices French or Italian bread, 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup maple syrup
3/4 cup chopped pecans

Thoroughly blend egg, milk, 1 tablespoon brown sugar and vanilla. Pour 1/2 of the egg mixture into a 9X13 inch pan. Place bread slices in the pan.

Put the remaining egg mixture over the bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Put butter in another 9X13 inch pan, and melt the butter. Add the brown sugar and maple syrup and mix, covering the bottom of the pan, and sprinkle with pecans. Carefully place soaked bread on top of the nut mixture.

Pour the remainder of the egg mixture over the bread and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes, or until puffed and light brown.

To serve, invert onto a platter (praline will be on top).

Brenda Koplin's Raw Broccoli Salad

This colorful dish has a nice lemony tang. Brenda is well known for her cooking and baking talent, and is a favorite at all pot-lucks!

1 large bunch broccoli
salt and pepper
approximately 1/4 cup salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 ripe tomatoes
1/3 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
lettuce cups

Finely chop the florets of a well-washed bunch of broccoli. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add enough salad oil to moisten lightly, and the lemon juice.

Mix well, and chill for a half hour. Cut the tomatoes into fairly small bits, squeezing out most of the seeds. Add to the broccoli. Add the sour cream, blended with the mustard. Mix well and serve in lettuce cups.

Stockton Folk Dance Camp will be held July 16-22 and July 23-29 this year. Our faculty lineup includes Nora Dinzelbacher, teaching Argentine Tango, Jerry Helt, teaching American Squares and Contras, Hennie Konings, teaching dances of Russia, Paul Mulders, teaching dances of Macedonia, Lee Otterholt, teaching dances of Greece, and Loui Tucker teaching Israeli couple dances.

A new faculty member this year will be Erik Bendix, teaching Balkan dances. Erik teaches regularly in Europe and on the East Coast. Last year he made a big hit teaching at Kolo Festival. Gary Diggs, another newcomer to FDC, will be teaching the International Recreational dance workshop this year. Gary comes from New Mexico and often teaches at the Southern California Camps Review Weekend.

In addition to our exciting lineup of dance classes, there will be singing workshops with Barbara Bevan and live music played by California Kapela. In addition to the assemblies presented by faculty members there will be a Macedonian party the first week and a Russian party the second week to round out your folklore experiences.

It's not possible to do everything in just one week of camp. Fortunately there are still spaces in camp both weeks. If you need a little help in order to attend two weeks, there are still partial scholarships available. You can download an application form from our website: www.folkdancecamp.org.

Attending Folk Dance Camp is the high point of my year. I hope to see you there!

WESTWOOD COOP FOLK DANCERS - GUEST TEACHER - DANIEL SANDU

Westwood Coop Folk Dancers invite the folk dance community to join them for a Workshop with Daniel Sandu teaching a variety of Romanian dances. We look forward to learning some exciting new dance forms from Romania.

Daniel will teach at Westwood Coop on Thursday, May 4, 2006 at Felicia Mahood Senior Center, 11338 Santa Monica Blvd., W. Los Angeles (corner of Corinth & Santa Monica Blvd., 2 blocks west of the 405 Fwy).

For information call Beverly Barr at (310) 202-6166.

stay there, they were invited to perform at the Minnesota State Fair. Morry Gelman and I were there, also, to perform in Morry's workshop group. We observed the Duquesne Tammies performance with Dick as one of the new dancers.

Of the five siblings in his family, he and his sister Lois Crum were the only two who were involved in folk dancing. We used to call them "Big Crum" and "Little Crum".

After Lois married, she was no longer active in folk dancing. When their parents lived in St. Petersburg, Florida for a few years, their mom, Florence (Fee Fee) Crum taught folk dancing in a group there.

Besides being in the 1951 group to New York, Dick and Lois also went to the St. Louis, Missouri Folk Dance Festival and also traveled to Hibbing and Chisholm, Minnesota, for Serbian Days.

One last memory of Dick for me is our impromptu couple dance of lindy or swing at the Tapestry Folk Dance Center in October, 2005, for a workshop with Dick and David Vinski. When the music stopped, he shouted "The winners!" I mentioned to him that he was teaching and dancing more than I thought he would. He agreed and said his legs were killing him.

When his sister Lois called me about the sad news of his death and asked me to spread the word I immediately phoned people and some I could not reach. When I called Ceil Wirth to give her the sad news she said she could e-mail and the sad news was spread.

FEDERATION WILL SUPPORT CLUB FESTIVALS

Folk dance festivals give us an opportunity to come together to dance as a community, but far fewer festivals have been scheduled in recent years. The Federation Council recognizes that the costs of putting on a folk dance festival, particularly of obtaining a suitable location, have risen a lot in recent years and this can be a big obstacle.

To make it easier for clubs to sponsor festivals, the Council has voted to provide a subsidy of up to $400 for any club festival where costs exceed proceeds. A club can request the subsidy from the Council vice president.

CORRECTION TO ARTICLE, "CHICAGO SPRING FESTIVAL" BY JATILA:

It was pointed out to me by Tom Bozigian, that my writing of the review of the Chicago Spring Festival implied that Ahmet taught Kurdish dances from the Kars region of Turkey. This is geographically impossible, and I apologize for my sloppiness! What I should have written, is the following:

Ahmet Luleci taught a number of exciting dances from various regions of Turkey, including Kurdish-style dances, and lively Black Sea dances, among others. My favorite dance, however, was one in a 6/8 rhythm from the Kars region of Turkey, in the northeast.

Again, thanks to Tom Bozigian (an avid Scene reader), for pointing out my mistake!

DANCING WITH TWO LEFT FEET. (14)

Have you ever lifted your eyes from following the leader's steps to look at the other dancers? Try it sometime and you will notice the different ways each one of us dances. Some of us dance with passion, sometimes ignoring the correct steps. Others, who have mastered the dance steps, dance with the same passion. And there are some, no offense, who have mastered the technique but lack the passion of folk dancing.

The idea to look at the dancers and look for the different dance styles actually came to me while traveling through Spain and attending several Flamenco performances. My wife is a passionate Flamenco follower and for her recent big birthday we made our pilgrimage to the birthplace of Flamenco.

Our first experience of the Flamenco passion happened in a small bar in Jerez we stumbled on in the middle of the day. The place was crowded with young people gathered around an older Gitano dancing to just the clapping and stomping of feet. It was pure passion, feet, body, and expression following the rhythm and the clapping. We joined the clapping and before we knew, at the request of the crowd, we were swept to the floor joining the dancer.

In the hills of Granada we experienced the dancing skill interwoven with Gitano passion in the cave home of Maria La Canastera. The dancers, from the grandmother down to her eleven year old granddaughter, showed us how the skill and the passion are passed on from generation to generation.

Seville, our next destination, demonstrated the last way of dancing, pure skill with little to no passion showing. We got tickets for a performance in the local Ladino/Gitano Hall, expecting to see the melding of the two cultures. After the introduction by a mediocre guitar player and a great flamenco singer, a beautiful young dancer with a big smile came on stage. While her intricate steps and patterns changed to the music, the smile on her face remained fixed throughout the performance. She was unable to draw either the audience or me into the mood and the feeling. It was all skill and with no passion.

So, back to folk dancing. What can we learn? Listen to the music. What does it tell you? Is it sad? Is it happy? Humorous? Playful? Sad?

Swing with the mood. Not only will you have more fun, but others will be swept into the mood of the moment. Believe me, passion is contagious.

DICK CRUM

Dick Crum began international folk dancing at the International Institute in St. Paul, Minnesota in September, 1947, with Morry Gelman as instructor. He also attended the University of Minnesota (University Folk Dancers) group in Minneapolis, Minnesota. His instructors were Dr. Ralph Piper and Morry Gelman.

Another group he participated in was the YMCA International Folk Dance Group in Minneapolis, Morry Gelman, instructor. At the YMCA he participated in a special kolo session led by Michael Herman of New York City, in 1950.

In the late 1940's, he participated in the Festival of Nations, sponsored by the International Institute. In 1952, he was the Festival program director.

In the late fall of 1951 (Thanksgiving weekend), he attended the first annual Kolo Festival in New York City, sponsored by the Folk Dance House and founded by Michael and Mary Ann Herman.

In 1953, when Morry and Nancy Gelman lived in Bavaria, Dick was in Yugoslavia. A former folk dancer, Dorothy Wesson, now deceased, was visiting the Gelmans. She was invited by Dick to come to Croatia and Serbia. The Gelmans took her there and she had a great time. Dorothy was a seamstress and made beautiful costumes.

REMEMBERING DICK CRUM

In addition to Morry Gelman's recollection of Dick Crum's activities in Minnesota and elsewhere, I, too, was a part of this beginning of international folk dancing, attending a university dance group since 1945.

Dick went to Duquesne University in 1950, and at break times would come home to Minnesota. In August of 1951, when the Duquesne University Tamburitzans went to Lake Nebagamon, Wisconsin for their annual

SEMINAR IN MACEDONIA

Zdraveitei Friends,

I would like to announce the first annual Macedonian Pearl Folk Seminar in Struga, on the shores of Lake Ohrid! It will be held July 5 - 16, 2006, under the direction of Goran Alacki, master accordionist, and Ljupco Manevski, dance director of Tanec.

For those who had a chance to attend their workshops in the US this past January, or has had the pleasure of spending the two weeks of Balkanfolk Camp with them in Bulgaria, you know what great teachers and "fun" people they are!

There will be beginning and advanced levels of Macedonian dance, and a special choreography class for advanced students. In music, there will be teachers of accordion (Goran himself, of course!), kaval, gaida, zurla, tapan, darbouka, and clarinet.

In addition, there will be nightly dance parties, classes in Macedonian language taught by Goran's beautiful and talented daughter Graciela, daily lectures on the costumes, culture, history, and handicrafts of Macedonia, and a boat trip with music and singing to see the ancient church of Sveta Naum.

Accommodations will be in the Hotel Biser at Struga, and all the dance classes will be held in a studio with a proper wood floor! And if you have not yet had the pleasure of swimming in the crystal clear waters of Lake Ohrid - well, you are in for a treat!

ROSE MILLER (1919-2005)

Rose was the daughter of a Russian Jewish immigrant father, Selig Miller (Milchecher before Ellis Island) and a first generation Russian-Jewish-American mother, Sarah Goldstein. A colorful, talented person, Rose showed her connection to her heritage by her enjoyment of Jewish music, stories, and Yiddish. Her broad artistic passion sparked her long lived interest in the music, dance and costumes of the Slavic nations.

Rose was a woman of many strengths. She was a trendsetter, even a maverick. She lived a long, fruitful life doing what she enjoyed. Rose was chutzpadik, but tempered with menschlikayt; she showed "attitude" before it was fashionable. She expressed her talents in beautiful artworks, designs and productions. Rose believed she could do anything she set her mind to and she was right. She didn't care what other people thought about her; she did her own thing.

Rose died on December 22, 2005 following a massive stroke. She was independent and in relatively good health until the end. She will be greatly missed by her folk dance friends and family.

— Patricia Schwartz

Ed. Note: I first meet Rose sometime in the 1970's at the San Diego Folk Dance Conference, and often danced with her in Los Angeles and Ventura. She will be missed. — Steve Davis

REVIEW OF TWO MAJOR DANCE EVENTS IN SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 31 & APRIL 1

CD Release Party by Sani Rifati, and Voice of Roma

What is Roma spelled backwards? Amor! Amor, Ahava, Ljubov, Love - in any language, that is what dance and music are all about, and the party at the Slavonic Center in South San Francisco on Friday night, March 31, was overflowing with lots of amor, and fantastic Romani music and dance.

This party was sponsored by the group Voice of Roma (VOR), headed by Sani Rifati, for the purpose of fund raising and consciousness raising, for VOR as well as Roma people in general, but also to celebrate the release of the new CD Soul of the Mahala, featuring Rumen Shopov and his son, Angel. Since we had to drive up from Santa Barbara, in the rain, after work, we unfortunately missed the first half of the party, which featured the local celebrity bands Anoush and Edessa; however the second half of the party featured some of the very best Bulgarian and Macedonian Romani musicians in the country, who flew in specially for this event, to play with Rumen. And what a party it was! We danced until after 1 am.

In order to present authentic, traditional Balkan Romani music to the world, as it is played in its "home land," Sani and Rumen went to Rumen's home village in southwest Bulgaria, in the Gotse Delchev region (see map). Featured on the recording are Rumen, Angel, and their family and friends of expert Romani musicians, in their own mahala. Mahala in Turkish means "neighborhood," but in the Balkan Romani dialect, mahala is more than a neighborhood. Mahala, according to the information provided in the CD cover, means: "your community, your home, your culture, the people with whom you grew up and with whom you share your spirituality and your life." Listening to Soul of the Mahala one certainly does get this very precious family feeling, simultaneously full of joy and sorrow, poignantly expressed in the songs of love and longing, of desperation filled with hope.

As with all the handicrafts sold by Sani and his beautiful wife Carol, also an expert dancer, all the proceeds from the CD sales go directly to benefit the artists themselves. You can purchase a CD from Voice of Roma on line at <http://www.voiceofroma.com/>, or by contacting Rumen Shopov directly at rumenashopov@yahoo.com, or (510) 847-7918.

Mendocino Folklore Camp Tribute and Fund-raiser

Saturday's party, also at the Slavonic Center of South San Francisco, was calmer by comparison to the wild party the previous night, with a different but also very worthy purpose. The original purpose was to raise funds for the Folklore Camp of Mendocino, which has taken place during mid-late June each year for 44 years. The additional purpose was to honor the loving memory of two folk dance icons, Dick Crum and Gordon Engler, who both passed away recently.

The events of the day were intended to provide a "taste of camp," hopefully to attract new people for the 2006 camp. The goal of Folklore camp is to preserve international folk dancing with both a deep respect and reverence for each culture, as well as a loving sense of irreverent humor. These two aspects were well represented at this event!

During the day, mini "taste-of-camp" workshops were taught by Erik Hoffman (contra), Jeff O'Connor (salsa), and the "Indomitable Billy Burke" (Balkan). The highlight of the afternoon was a crash-course singing workshop in Ladarke (see below), during which kindly experienced singers dragged along those of us who are less experienced in an incredible "Ladarke sing along," with accompaniment by a large tamburitzza orchestra! This was the next-best-thing to hearing the full Ladarke sung in the cavernous kitchen at Mendocino camp!

There was a themed happy hour (another traditional camp experience) featuring a Barbary Coast waterfront saloon with sea chanties and hornpipes (see below).

The evening dance party featured great dancing to an incredible line up of talented bands, notably Turlu and Anoush from the Bay Area, and Chubritza, who came all the way from Arcata. The festivities were rounded out by moving speeches honoring the memories of Dick and "Gordy" by Billy Burke, John Filcich, and Honora Clark, who spoke lovingly of their teaching and humorous escapades at camp.

The "camp experience" was made complete by Billy's mini-rendition of his famous live auction, which he does at camp every year, to raise money for the scholarship students. As humorous and fun as the auction is, the purpose is really quite serious, and deserves special mention. The camp offers scholarships each summer to under privileged teens who are talented, deserving, interested in ethnic dance, but who otherwise could not afford to come to camp. Almost all of "Billy-and-Susie's kids" who have come to camp in the past have gone on to pursue dance, music, and/or theater careers in college and beyond, to carry on the ethnic traditions. If any readers wish to donate to the scholarship fund, you can get info at <http://www.mendocinofolklore.com>.

Oh - by the way - one of the auction items that went for $150 was "me" - for a Middle Eastern dance performance at a private party.
